The Project
by Job Roberts
WIA 2015

This website I put together is not what I originally planned. I had originally planned on having a slide out menu to the left but the more I tend to add the more things begun to not work the way I wanted to .
The website contains video <iframe> tags that displays my original work I have done in the past for clients.An about page that explains a little bit about me and my work.
All of the photography and graphics used in this project are all my own personal work.
This website is a representation of my photography and design work I do on the side. With the hover over a button you can hear one of my favorite pieces of audio I added to help give the site a little bit more life.

There is a data visualization included along with an interactive image gallery. The contact page has a complete form to send a message with a drop down menu along with radio button selection to indicate priority.

I also included an interactive map along in the site.
